Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #1 (Par 4)

A great chance to start your round with a Par or Birdie, this downhill Par 4 offers room down the right side and a chance to drive the green if the wind co-operates. The fairway slopes slightly left to right with a right to left sloping green. Putts can deceive the most prudent putters, so make sure to secure your Par to start off the round.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #2 (Par 3)

The 2nd Hole at Blue Springs is a steeply downhill Par 3 that usually plays two (2) clubs shorter than advertised. Unlike most holes, the entire green slopes off the back left, meaning the longer club choice is an easier up and down. Don't shortside yourself to the right or you will surely make a Bogey.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #3 (Par 4)

A theme at Blue Springs means positioning your tee ball is key to making Par. A shot of 200-220 yards max is required to reach the apex of this 90 degree dogleg right. Aim at the centre tree and do your best to avoid the right trees at all costs. Cutting the corner is not an option in stroke play, so play the hole as designed and keep your round going!

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #4 (Par 5)

The first of the long holes offers the chance to reach the green in two (2), despite the uphill tee shot. Stay between the fescue on both sides and decide whether to lay-up or go for the green. Beware of the hidden ponds left and right short of green, which cannot be seen from the fairway. The green slopes left to right, so make sure to factor that into your approach shot.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #5 (Par 3)

This medium length Par 3 presents a large right to left sloping green with some Phil Mickelson worthy pin placements. The only place to miss the green is right, as short and left means a watery grave. Aim for the centre of the green and commit to your yardage. If you find the surface, be happy with Par and move to the next tee.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #6 (Par 4)

The short Par 4 offers another elevated tee shot where placing your ball down the right centre is ideal. Stay short of the fairway bunkers to give yourself a deceptively uphill approach to a severely back to front sloping green. Avoid going long at all cost, as saving Par from behind the green will require a glassy touch.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #7 (Par 4)

This tight Par 4 bends slightly right and is protected by O.B. down the entire right side and a fairway bunker left. A 190-220 yard shot will leave you short of the bunker on a flat lie, leaving about 160-170 yards downhill to a large green sloping severely back to front. If you are above the hole, expect one of the quickest putts on the property.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #8 (Par 4)

Don't let this stunning Par 4 take your attention away from the tee shot. Another hole where distance and accuracy is key to leave yourself a good approach shot. Don't go left off the tee, or a punch out is likely due to the treeline. A right centre tee shot to the 150 yard marker is ideal. The green is angled from right to left with a ridge bisecting the middle, so focus on distance control or risk a 3 putt from the wrong tier.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #9 (Par 5)

This slithering snake of a Par 5 rewards an aggressive tee shot by cutting the corner; however, too long and you will be looking for your wetsuit. Most players will lay up short of the fairway bunker, lay up again with a short iron to the right of the green and then attempt to wedge it close. This green slopes severely right to left, so missing the green on the high side will make securing your Par a monumental task.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #10 (Par 4)

This elevated Par 4 plays steeply downhill and rewards an accurate tee shot down the right roughline where the further you go, the flatter the lie you will find. Missing the fairway left usually means finding the lateral hazard. This green is one of the flatter greens, so control your distance and find yourself with a Birdie chance.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #12 (Par 5)

This reachable Par 5 is deceptively tight the closer you get to the right fairway bunker. Despite the open look on the tee, the lateral hazard down the entire left comes into play for most shots missing the fairway left. The smart play is to lay-back off the tee and play to your desired yardage; however, a 90 yard lay-up from the green will leave you an uphill lie on this undulating fairway. This is the most difficult green on the course!

What you see is what you get. This open dogleg right provides a myriad of options off the tee. Avoid the bunkers down the left for an approach to this large green, but beware of a hidden pond guarding the right side. The approach is protected by a 3-tiered green where a back pin should not be challenged, or risk going long into some thick trees. 13 can be lucky or unlucky depending on your course management!

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #14 (Par 4)

This lengthy Par 4 often plays into the prevailing wind, so make sure to find the fairway. A left centre tee shot is ideal to avoid the right bunkers and will leave a slightly uphill approach to a large green split by a ridge front and back. Putts can be very slow or fast depending on the pin position, so Par is a good result.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #15 (Par 5)

This straight away Par 5 is another reachable endeavour where the longer you hit your tee shot, the tighter the fairway becomes. With O.B. on the left side, a right centre tee shot will give you a chance to reach the green. Whether you decide to lay-up or go for glory, beware of the volatile pond on the right starting 130 yards from the green.

This straight away Par 4 appears much longer from the tee. An ideal tee shot of 220-240 yards past the white stake will leave an uphill approach that requires 1 or 2 more clubs. The green is large and divided into front and back tiers by a ridge in the mid-section. As with most holes, Par is achieved by finding the correct section of the green.

The signature hole might give you a moment to enjoy the muskoka chairs on the tee; however, pay attention to the wind before making your club choice. The green is larger than it appears from the tee and an incorrect club choice could result in a 3 putt. This hole has the potential for a 2 or a 5, so leaving an uphill putt will avoid the latter.

Blue Springs G.C. - Hole #18 (Par 4)

The final hole at Blue Springs appears open, but many who try to cut the corner are forced to punch out when they miss their shot left. The fairway bunkers left are more for aesthetics than strategy, so play to the 150 for another uphill approach. The green slopes back to front, so missing the green short will mean a chance to save Par.
